

MENNONITE STUDIES (MENN)

February 13, 2024

Chair: B. Nobbs-Thiessen

The establishment of the Chair in Mennonite Studies was made possible through the generous gifts of Dr. David Friesen, Q.C., his family, and the Federal Department of the Secretary of State.

INTRODUCTION

The Chair in Mennonite Studies was established to give students an opportunity to study the rich story of the Mennonites, their way of life and their interaction with the wider society. Mennonite Studies is an Interdisciplinary Program, combining history, religion, culture, and literature as they relate to the Mennonites in the past and present. In the courses and seminars students seek to understand the radical Anabaptist roots of this once persecuted people, and consider their changing worlds and religious practice. Special attention is given to contributions they have made to Canadian society, including food security, peace and nonviolence, literature, and art. The question of how the Mennonites seek to come to terms with the world around them is a major part of the Program's emphasis.

A minor in Mennonite Studies is available to students pursuing a bachelor's degree. Those interested in completing a minor in Mennonite Studies should consult with the Chair in Mennonite Studies by email or phone, 204-786-9391, to plan their program of study. The Mennonite Studies Minor requires the completion of a minimum of 18 credit hours of courses in Mennonite Studies including Mennonites Studies I and II.

Students will find courses in Mennonite Studies an inspiring and informative addition to a liberal arts education. A Minor in Mennonites Studies, or courses in Mennonite Studies, will be relevant to students interested in Mennonite (or Anabaptist) faith origins, Mennonite migrations through Europe and North America, and today's Mennonite community in both the Global North and Global South.

A Mennonite Studies program will prepare students to work in a wide variety of fields, including those that focus on multicultural understanding, peace and conflict, spiritual discipline, communitarian simplicity and environmental sustainability. Such a program of study will be relevant to students intending to write MA and PhD theses dealing with Anabaptist-Mennonite subjects. Mennonite Studies courses will also prepare students to work in fields such as journalism, law, education, counselling, food security, religious leadership and public policy analysis. Students may also choose to pursue further scholarly work in a particular subfield of Mennonite Studies, one linked to such disciplines as Conflict Resolution Studies, History, International Development Studies, Religion and Culture, Sociology, and Women's and Gender Studies.
